It is figured out that there are 8,800,000,000 tons of coal in the Karampara region of India. The trusts haven't struck that yet.

Kate Klaxton, the actress, has gone into bankruptcy; liabilities $10,000, assets $100 worth of clothes. There are lots of actresses who don't wear that much clothes.

New York has some very realistic dreamers. One of them in a dream cut her husband's throat, and another in a dream shot his wife. There should be a line drawn on homicidal suppers.

In answer to Mr. Stead's interrogatory, "Shall I slay my brother Boer?" it may be remarked that brother Boer seems to have been doing most of the slaying up to the present writing.

It is said that John P. Rockefeller is contemplating retiring from the active management of the Standard Oil Trust. He thinks that he is well enough fixed to take a rest and let the other boys run the business.

A peace meeting in London was mobbed a few nights ago while Henry Labouchere was speaking. That's on a par with the "traitor" argument that is used by some of the expansion defenders in the United States Senate.

In Germany they think they have sufficient grounds for sympathizing with the Boers. Germany owns 320,000 square miles down in that part of the world which England may covet after awhile if she absorbs the Boers' land.

This country exported last year $663,536,201 worth of food stuffs, 88 per cent. of which went to European countries and 62 per cent. to the United Kingdom. Great Britain might be making trouble for herself if she declared food stuffs contraband of war.

The Ohio employes of the Standard Oil Trust threaten to strike because they object to working on Sunday. If they do this will give the Trust an excuse to run the price of oil up some more. The concern isn't declaring dividends of more than 80 per cent. per annum.

There is a 92 year old postmaster in North Landsing, N. Y., who knows a good thing when it tumbles in his way. John Quincey Adams appointed him postmaster. He has been manipulating the mails in that office ever since. We do not know what the office originally paid him but for some years he has been raking in $12 a year.

Miss Cora Riggleman, of West Va., isn't much on the German, progressive euchre, etc., but when it comes to mauling timber and making the chips fly she can hold her own with any of the fashionable girls. Last year she felled the trees and hewed out 3,000 crossties, all by her lone sweet self. She finished up by running the ties down the mountain side to the stream, where they were rafted to the place of delivery.

An Enormous Fund.

The statement of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, printed elsewhere in the STAR, makes a remarkable exhibit. It shows that, while the aggregate stock of the Bank of England, the Bank of France, the Imperial Bank of Germany and the Bank of Russia is $176,372,855, the funds held by the "Mutual Life" for the payment of its policies reach the enormous sum of $301,844,537. Messrs. Willard & Giles are the Wilmington agents.

LONGEST SCHOOL TERM IN NORTH CAROLINA.

County Free Schools Will Be Maintained in New Hanover for Seven Months in the Year.

It was decided at the regular monthly meeting of the County Board of Education held yesterday afternoon at 2 30 o'clock to extend the length of the annual public school term in the county from twenty-four weeks to twenty-eight weeks or from six school months of four weeks each to seven school months of four weeks each. This extended term is made to districts where the attendance will warrant the prolongation of the term and in those where the enthusiasm of patrons indicates that they will appreciate the additional facilities for the education of their children.

With the inauguration of the proposed long term, New Hanover will enjoy the merited distinction of affording to its citizens, both white and colored, the longest free school term of any county in the State, and Capt. Manning, the enthusiastic county superintendent of public instruction, is authority for the statement that each and every district that manifests any substantial desire for the increased term, will surely receive it and that, too, for the current fiscal year ending July 1st. For a number of years recently the duration of the term was five months; more recently it was increased to six months and by the action of the public spirited board yesterday, the term is still further increased, as stated.

The nearest approach in the State to New Hanover's term under the new regime is Pasquotank county, which has a term of eighteen weeks for the white and seventeen for the colored race. Other counties in their order are Washington with 17½ and 16½ weeks for whites and colored respectively; Durham, 17 and 15; Buncombe, 17½ and 15½; Vance 16 and 18; Wake 16 and 16 and Mecklenburg, 11 for whites and 7 for colored.

Every public school in New Hanover county is now in thorough working order and the attendance is the best in years. It can be said with pardonable pride in the light of the figures given, that no coutny in the State is more thoroughly alive to public education by the county system than is New Hanover.

At the meeting of the county board yesterday afternoon, Col. W. A. Johnson presided and members in attendance were Mr. W. A. Sprunt and Capt. Donald McRae. Capt. Manning, the superintendent, was also present.

Except the consideration of the matter of lengthening the school term, no other business save the auditing of the treasurer's report and bills for current expenses, was taken up at the meeting, and an adjournment was taken subject to call of the chairman.

BANKRUPTCY PROCEEDINGS.

Before S. H. McRae, Referee—Composition Effected With Creditors.

A meeting of the creditors of W. H. Gaylord, bankrupt, was held yesterday morning at 11 o'clock in the United States Court room, before S. H. MacRae, referee. About $15,000 of the claims were presented and proved. The total amount of the claims is about $18,000. A composition of 45 per cent. on all claims was offered, and after consideration was accepted by the representatives of creditors present, subject to its confirmation by Judge Purnell. By the terms of the composition the creditors are to receive 45 per cent. on their claims, less an allowance of $250 with which the bankrupt's estate is to be taxed for the costs and fees. All other costs and expenses incurred are to be paid by Geo. O. Gaylord, who is the endorser of the notes given by W. H. Gaylord to secure his creditors. The stock of goods now in the store of W. H. Gaylord is to be turned over to Geo. O. Gaylord, in the event of confirmation of the composition by the Court. Pending the confirmation E. H. Freeman has been appointed trustee to conduct the business, and yesterday gave bond in the sum of $10,000.

Among the attorneys present during the proceedings were Herbert McClammy and B. G. Empie, representing the petitioning creditors, S. M. Empie, representing W. H. Gaylord, and George L. Peschau, John H. Gore, Jr., Wm. J. Bellamy and Robert T. McDowell, of Baltimore, representing creditors at large.

Leased From W. & W.

Mr. W. E. Worth, Wilmington's enterprising ice manufacturer, yesterday filed for registration at the Court House a lease of ten years' duration, which he has contracted with the Wilmington and Weldon Railroad Company for the use of a tract of land adjoining his ice factory on Second and Campbell streets, the natural inference being that an increased business is demanding an enlargement of the plant and consequently a larger area of land upon which to place the machinery. The tract is 40 by 130 feet and begins at a point in the southern line of Campbell, 150 feet west from corner of Third street.

Mr. Curran's Marriage.

The Fayetteville Observer of Saturday says:

"We learn through this morning's Wilmington papers of the marriage in New York Tuesday of Mr. M. H. Curran, of Wilmington, and well known to many young people in Fayetteville as one of the very cleverest of Irishmen. He was married to Miss Elizabeth Feely, of New York, in the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, and the announcement was a great and pleasant surprise to his friends in Wilmington and all over the State."

NAVAL RESERVES' MEETING.

Elected Seventeen Candidates for Membership Last Night—Social Order Chose Officers.

Last night's regular monthly business meeting of the Wilmington Division Naval Reserves was one of especial interest and pleasure to members by reason of the large number of applications that were presented for membership in the company. Besides those passed upon by the division, there is yet, so the STAR, is informed, quite a handsome list of applications on file.

The following were elected at last night's meeting: W. B. ("Tuck") Savage, W. H. Strauss, Jno. H. Batson, Chas. E. McMillan, W. G. Moore, Claude E. Fisher, J. N. Sweeney, J. Edward Bunting, J. Frank Culbreth, W. S. Herring, Jno. C. Haar, Oscar E. Merritt, Wm. G. Brinkley, Joe Kelley, R. L. Stevenson, J. P. Brewer, W. F. Morriss.

After the regular meeting of the division, the "Royal Grand Bouncers," a social organization composed of members of the Naval Reserves and having for the object of their organization the fostering care of all new members, held forth and elected the following officers:

Lord High Executioner—S. A. Matthews.
His Royal Highness—A. L. Greenebaum.
Royal Grand Chaplain—M. L. Skipper.
Royal Past Grand Chancellor—Arthur Prempert.

Royal Grand Sprinklers—Jim Mackfarlane, J. E. Cowell, D. F. Barnes, N. D. Huhn.

CATASTROPHE NARROWLY AVERTED.

A gasoline can, a handful of matches and two little folks—children of Mr. C. E. Collins—came near causing a conflagration on Market, between Second and Third streets, yesterday afternoon at 6.30 o'clock.

Mr. Collins and family occupy apartments over Mr. H. J. Bierman's store, No. 215 Market street, and unknown to older members of the family, the children were in a room adjoining the kitchen playing with the combustibles mentioned. One of them took off the cover of the can with child-like curiosity, to see how much gasoline there was left in the tank and the second unthoughtedly in some way allowed the flame to catch. Both children fortunately escaped without injury. A telephone alarm was sent in to the department and the flames were extinguished in short order by the chemical engine.

The building is owned by Mr. C. C. Parker and the damage is about $15. There was also some damage to the household goods of Mr. Collins, upon which he had no insurance.

Death of Mr. Charles F. Zoeller.

The Saginaw, Mich., Courier and Herald, of February 6th, announces the death in that city on the 5th inst., of Mr. Charles F. Zoeller, formerly of Tarboro, N. C. He was born in Landau, Bavaria, April 2d, 1842, and was the son of Mr. Victor Zoeller, who with Gen. Carl Schurz, and other patriots, immigrated to America in 1850 on account of their participation in the Bavarian revolution.

The deceased was an uncle of Messrs. Victor E. and August H. Zoeller, of Wilmington. During the civil war he served in the First North Carolina Regiment and was in the battles of Chancellorsville, Antietam, Gettysburg, and other engagements. Shortly after the war he removed to Saginaw, and has served as alderman, treasurer and assessor of that city. The Saginaw Courier and Herald contains a long article concerning his death and says he was "a capable, honest and painstaking man." He was twice married, his first wife being Miss Rose A. Wehle, of Newburg, N. C. His last wife, with two children, and three daughters and two sons by the first marriage, survive him. He was a prominent Mason, and will be remembered as a visitor to Wilmington three or four years ago.

Pretty Line of Goods.

The enterprising management of the Wilmington Cotton Mills had on display in the show-windows of the MacRae building on Front street, yesterday, about two hundred samples of the flannel goods manufactured in Wilmington's pioneer cotton factory. The goods are stripes, plaids, checks and flecks, and a glimpse at the samples shows that the goods are superior in quality as well as in design and finish. These goods represent the "Golden Rod Flannel" brand of the Wilmington Mills, and it was a capital idea to display them, for many Wilmingtonians had no idea such a handsome line of flannelettes were manufactured right here in Wilmington.

Mrs. Smith's Funeral.

Rev. Dr. C. S. Blackwell, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock conducted the funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Eliza C. Smith, whose death was announced in Sunday's STAR. The funeral was from the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. Josiah C. Jones, and the interment was in Bellevue cemetery, the following gentlemen acting as pall-bearers: Dr. A. M. Baldwin, W. H. Alderman, T. P. Sykes and Allison Alderman.

IS ARIE BRYANT DEAD?

His Remains Said to Have Been Brought Here and Interred Sunday.

Arie Bryant, one of the colored refugees from Wilmington upon the occasion of the racial troubles in Wilmington, November 10th, 1898, is said to have died in Norfolk last week and a STAR reporter has it, on what is considered good authority, that his body was brought to this city and interred Sunday. The funeral according to an established custom of some of the colored churches, will be held later. A number of colored people approached concerning Bryant's death yesterday, refused to discuss the matter.

Mayor's Monday Court.

The only case of interest in the municipal court yesterday morning was that of Henry Williams, colored, charged with assault and battery with a deadly weapon. Williams lives with his wife on Queen street between Front and Second. Saturday night, they wished to celebrate their "Silver Wedding" and the affair was "going off in great shape" when Williams drew a chair and struck the wife whom he had "loved and cherished" for fifteen years, a severe blow across the head. Mayor-pro-tem Springer, who presided at the court in the absence of Col. Waddell, didn't sanction such unceremonious conduct, especially at the termination of a celebration like the one being indulged in by the Williams household, and consequently he sent Henry over to the court in default of $500 bond.

Other cases before the court were for the not unusual offence of drunkenness and disorderly conduct and the fines ranged from $2.50 to thirty days on the streets.

The Rock Stratum Under the Y. M. C. A.

Mr. R. H. Brady, who was appointed by the Y. M. C. A. athletic committee to ascertain if the swimming pool could be constructed in the basement without the necessity of removing any great amount of shell rock, found that there was no rock nearer than nine feet to the base of the building. As the swimming pool will be only eight feet deep, the committee will no doubt decide to construct the pool in the basement.

Fertilizer Movement.

A Charleston, S. C., special to the Columbia State says that a considerable quantity of fertilizers is being shipped into the interior of the State, notwithstanding the advance in prices rendered necessary by the increased cost of machinery supplies, and raw materials, used in the manufacture. The companies about Charleston are all in full operation and the movement is lively. The advance in cotton will probably cause the farmers to plant a larger crop than was intended, which means a greater consumption of fertilizers.

COL. GUILDNER PROMOTED.

He is Now President of An Anti-Trust Shovel Factory.

The gentleman who thus registered is no less a person than Col. Guildner, who has travelled years and years for Messrs. Sargent & Co., the great New York hardware house. He is widely and popularly known throughout the South, and especially in North Carolina his name is a household word among the trade.

Since his last trip to Wilmington, Col. Guildner has been promoted, so to speak, having become the head of a manufacturing concern that is going to make it warm for the trust. The New York Iron Age, of February 6th, mentions the recent incorporation of the Baltimore Shovel and Manufacturing Company, of Baltimore, Md., with a capital stock of $50,000. Col Guildner, who is a Baltimorean, was elected president, and Mr. George L. Mowen, another well known business man of the Monumental City, was elected vice president. The company will make socket shovels of standard grades and sizes and is the only shovel manufactory outside of the trust. The colonel says it is going to always camp on the outside, too, and make it warm for the trust.

Prof. DeMotte's Lecture.

The Star Course of entertainments in the Young Men's Christian Association auditorium will be resumed next Friday evening with that famous lecturer, Prof. John B. DeMotte, A.M., M.D., Ph.D., in his widely known and popular illustrated lecture "The Harp of the Senses, or The Secret of Character Building." Prof. DeMotte has several lectures, but this is said to be his very best effort, though indeed not his latest. His object is to bring the scientific to the popular mind, and his success has been rather phenomenal.

The Star Course committee has decided to open this entertainment to the general public, making the price of admission 75 cents, including reserved seats. The box sheet will open Thursday morning at the Y. M. C. A. office.

At the Weather Bureau.

Mr. J. Frank Newsom, whom the STAR mentioned several days ago as having been transferred back to the local Weather Bureau from Norfolk as assistant, arrived in the city last evening and is being cordially greeted by his numerous friends. Mrs. Newsom is visiting her parents at Princeton, N. C., but will join her husband here in a few days. Mr. Newsom begins work in the Wilmington bureau this morning.

Mr. C. A. Mueller, who has been serving Wilmington very efficiently for the past several months as assistant observer, leaves to day for Vicksburg, Miss., where he will enter upon similar duties. He carries with him the best wishes of a host of friends, whom he has drawn to himself since becoming a resident of this city.

Negro Carried to Southport.

Sheriff D. R. Walker and Deputy Sheriff J. B. Fountain, of Brunswick county, were up yesterday and carried back with them Robert Hankins, the negro who was arrested here Saturday afternoon charged with the larceny of $33 in Southport.

They left at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon on the steamer with their prisoner and will place him in jail at Southport awaiting trial at the next term of Brunswick Criminal Court. From information gathered from the officers it appeared that Hankins stole the money from a colored man at Southport with whom he was upon intimate terms and at, whose house he stopped while the steamer is laying over at Southport.

The Well at Wrightsville.

The STAR, in speaking of the proposed artesian well at Caswell a few days since, referred to the contemplated well as the first experiment in this line so near the sea coast. A reporter is reminded that for a number of years an artesian well of five hundred feet depth has been in successful operation at the "hammocks" at Wrightsville beach, almost within a stone's throw of the ocean. The well has a splendid overflow, shoots up to a distance of four feet above the ground level and supplies the hundreds of cottages and hotels on the beach.

Mr. Walker's Philanthropy.

Under the caption, "A Generous Donation," the Baltimore Sun of yesterday editorially says:

"Wilmington, N. C., is to have a model hospital building through the generosity of Mr. James Walker, one of its wealthiest and most estimable citizens. He made known his intentions Tuesday. The building will be four stories, of brick and stone, and will be erected on the present grounds of the City Hospital. It will cost about $30,000. A meeting of leading physicians and citizens was held and a resolution unanimously adopted that means would be provided to carry on the hospital when erected."

To City Subscribers.

City subscribers are earnestly requested to report promptly at the STAR office every failure of the carriers to deliver their papers. In all such cases steps will be taken to insure promp and regular delivery.

The East Carolina Real Estate Agency will sell for cash, or will exchange for desirable house and lot in Wilmington, a farm of 273 acres, three miles from Rose Hill. Address R. G. Grady & Co., Burgaw, N. C.

BY WILLIAM H. BERNARD.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

TUESDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 13.

MUCH IN LITTLE.

We have frequently remarked that some of the best newspaper advertising the South receives is from Northern papers. From time to time we have reproduced articles from some of the most prominent and influential of these relating to the industrial progress, the resources and the advantages offered by the South for certain industries. We find in the Baltimore Manufacturers' Record of last week, the following, taken from the New York Financial News, which, brief as it is, contains a large amount of solid matter, every sentence of which is based on the unvarnished truth:

"In coal and iron, lying alongside of each other for hundreds of miles, the South has limitless possibilities for iron and steel. The largest timber reserves of the country are in the South. The mountain country is a region where the finest of fruits can be grown in vast quantities as an export crop, where cattle can be profitably raised in great numbers and dairy operations carried on profitably. The agriculture of the South can be varied and expanded almost without limit. In a word, the Southern States are peculiarly and wonderfully rich in the materials upon which great industries are founded, and is, at the same time, able to subsist a dense population from its own soil. These facts are gradually becoming known and being taken advantage of. The growth of the South will continue."

Here are four reasons given in four sentences why the South should be and must be industrially great. Iron may be found in workable quantities at numerous points throughout an area reaching all the way from the Potomac to the Rio Grande, and at many of these points in close proximity to coal, and all within easy reach of transportation by rail or river. But in addition to this, in the same area, are found copper, zinc, mica and other minerals, the finest kinds of building stones, including a large variety of marbles, the mining or quarrying of which have become important industries. It is not at all unlikely that within the near future the copper belt of the South, extending from Virginia into Georgia, will become the leading producer of copper, and that means something, for copper commands a high price, compared with the prices of several years ago, and the demand is constantly increasing.

Iron and coal made Pennsylvania rich; why should not iron and coal (which can be mined more cheaply in the South than in Pennsylvania) and copper make rich the Southern States, which abound in them ?

It isn't easy to over-estimate the value or the possibilities of these minerals, especially of iron, for iron-making is one of the basic industries upon which numerous other great industries are founded, industries that give investment to millions of capital and to many thousands of skilled and unskilled workmen. As yet the iron-making and manufacturing industries are in their infancy, but there is practically no limit to their growth, for they have not only a home but a world market to operate in.

As a rule sections which are rich in minerals are poor in soil, but the rule does not apply in the South, for iron, coal and copper are found under soil that has been cultivated for many years. The smoke from the iron mills in Alabama falls on bursting cotton bolls and the copper miners work in the tunnels underneath the wheat and the corn fields.

If there were no iron and coal the timber reserve, of which the paper from which we quote speaks, would be inestimably valuable in view of the rapid disappearance of the forests which supply the lumber of the country, but combined with iron and coal its value is immensely increased, because it affords the material for numerous industries into which wood and iron jointly enter, such as the building of railway cars, carriages, wagons, agricultural machinery and implements and scores of other things that support large industries in some sections of the country, which for some time have had to import both the iron and the lumber they use. If the cotton mills go to the cotton fields and the iron mills to the iron furnaces, (as they do), why shouldn't the wood-working plants go to the wood-growing section?

What the Financial News says about the productive possibilities of the mountain section is equally true of the greater part of the South, plain as well as highland. There is no part of the South in which the finest kinds of fruits, and the finest kinds of vegetables cannot be grown, grown so abundantly that many thousands of bushels of fruits are allowed to go to waste annually, simply because the growers have not yet come to fully appreciate their value as marketable products and therefore do not care for them as they should and will when they grow wiser, and more thrifty. The same land that produces the fruits also produces in abundance as fine vegetables as grow out of the ground any where and many thousands of bushels of these are annually allowed to go to waste for the same reason that fruit are. The same land that grows these fruits and vegetables, could pasture countless herds of cattle and flocks of sheep and droves of swine, not only enough to supply the population of the South with meat, but with millions of dollars worth for export, and also supply the tanneries with all the hides they could tan and the woollen mills with all the wool they could spin and weave. These—fruit-growing, vegetable-growing, cattle, sheep and swine raising, although pursued to some extent, are as industries yet in their infancy, for the South with all her possibilities does not raise enough of any of them to supply the home demand.

Of course, it isn't going to be so always; the Southern people are not so unprogressive as that, and they are learning much these days about the value of things that have not been much thought of in the past. There is evidence of that in the advance in diversified farming, and in the corresponding decrease in the importations of meats and other food-stuffs for which even the rural districts of the South but a few years ago were so largely dependent upon other sections.

A GOOD CAMPAIGN DOCUMENT.

The speech delivered by Senator Chandler Saturday in opposition to the Senate currency bill is a splendid campaign document, whether the bill be passed or not. It will be a good campaign document for the double reason that he presents unanswerable arguments against the single gold stand standard, disposes of the sham claim that the return of prosperity is the result of Republican policies, and that Mr. Chandler is an aggressive Republican, who has stood with and fought for his party on every party issue save this. His position on this question is more notable, and therefore the more impressive, because he is from the East, where silver has few advocates among Republicans.

It is safe to say, in view of Mr. Chandler's loyalty to party, that if he did not believe the declaration for the single gold standard a blunder of the worst character, and a blow at the honor and integrity of the party which is so emphatically committed to bimetallism, he would not thus earnestly antagonize his party and serve notice on its leaders in the Senate that he could not and would not go with them in this blunder and breach of faith, and accept any part of the responsibility for them.

The Republican leaders have been brazenly claiming that the return of prosperity is the result of Republican tariff and financial policies. He blows away this sham when he declares that the prosperity we now have is the result of the balance of trade in our favor. That, instead of being due to Republican policies, is the result of the foreign demand for food stuffs, growing out of short crops in other countries, and of the large increase in our manufactured exports made possible by the numerous advantages presented in this country for the manufacture of these exported articles, in competition with foreign manufacturers.

The speech is not only an argument against the financial policy which the Republican leaders at the instigation of the gold mongers are trying to fasten upon the country, but also against the tariff policy which they are perpetuating, with its weighty burden upon the American people. In this bold, honest, manly utterance Mr. Chandler has not only done himself credit but has rendered his country and the cause of honesty much service.

A short while ago a New York man swallowed a scarf pin. The doctors performed a surgical operation and recovered the pin, but the man didn't recover. He died from the effects of the carving.

STRUCK ANOTHER SNAG.

Senator Butler is having a pretty rough time in trying to steer the Populist boat into Pritchard's pool. He has already struck some ugly snags, and keeps on striking them.

J. J. Marshall is a prominent Populist of Vienna, Forsyth county. He was one of the organizers of the party in that county, and hence Marion concluded he could slip his ring into Marshall's nose, and lead him whithersoever he would. He therefore sent him a letter requesting him to skip around and get the names of any Democrats in his neighborhood who might be opposed to "ballot-box stuffing" and the amendment, or of those who might be persuaded to vote against the amendment. He also asked to have sent to him the names of Populists or Republicans who had voted the Democratic ticket at the last election, and of those who didn't vote. He also wanted the names of "six reliable" Populists who would agree to distribute campaign "literature" and who could be "relied upon to assist in other ways later."

In response to these several requests Mr. Marshall indited and mailed to barterer Marion the following swinger: After referring to the requests he says:

"You ask, sir, that I send you the names of Democrats of my township 'who are opposed to the ballot-box stuffing.' I work for a living and therefore have not the time to make a roster of the Democrats in my township. There may be some of them who are NOT opposed to ballot-box stuffing; such men can perhaps be found in all parties, just as men can be found in all parties who are willing, aye eager, to sell their principles for office, and just as there are political leaders who do not hesitate to indulge in deals for office and dickers for place at the expense of those who have believed them to be sincere leaders, who, not content with selling their own birthright for a sorry mess of pottage, attempt to sell also the birth-right of others.

"There may be Democrats who favor ballot-box stuffing in my township, if so I do not know them. These men against whom you see fit to bring the insinuation conveyed in your letter are my neighbors. They have not stolen my property and I have no reason to believe they will attempt to steal my vote—or sell it.

"You are not mistaken in addressing me as a Populist. I am a Populist from principle. Therefore I am tired of seeing my party given over, at every election, into the arms of that party which is most radically opposed to every plank in its platform. I am a Populist, yes; but first of all and above all, sir, I am a white man. I made myself a Populist. I was born a white man. I am even what you would term so "prejudiced" as to be proud of it, and in the fight which is now upon us in this State, so far as I am concerned, I shall stand by my race. You and those who with you assume to speak for the Populist party have left me no choice in this instance, but to change my skin or my party affiliation. I prefer to change the latter.

"Have you, Mr. Butler, stopped to consider what this thing is you are asking me and other Populist to do? Do you realize the position in which you are attempting to place the Populist party? Pray, sir; how far do you expect us to follow you? By what right do you ask me that I betray my principles and my race at the same time? I believe in the free coinage of silver. You ask me to co-operate with a party that is even now riviting the gold standard on the country. I am opposed to Trusts. You ask me to join in with a party that fosters and fathers them. I believe in a white man's government. You ask me to vote with negroes and for negroes. You go even further, you ask my active support against a measure intended to make negro domination hereafter impossible.

"What good, sir, can come to my State, my party, myself or my family from such perfidious course? I think you have misunderstood the character and the temper of the men who compose the Populist party, in assuming that they lack in that pride of blood which makes the white man everywhere cleave to his kind.

"I believe that the self-respecting Populist will resent as an insult this attempt of yours to persuade him that it is not necessary to transmit to his off-spring undiminished the prestige that came to him from his forefathers.

"You ask for the 'names and post office addresses of six active and reliable Populists' in my 'township who can be relied on to assist in other ways later.' In what do you expect these Populists to 'assist later?' Do you think to make them parties to your plan to 'whip out of the State' the men who are determined, at any hazard, to preserve its civilization? I trust there are no such Populists in my township. I feel sure that a half dozen cannot be found who will be parties to any scheme to perpetuate the danger of negro domination in this State by a resort to violence. If such be your purpose I warn you that it cannot succeed. You may stir up bitterness and incite to bloodshed, but as a Populist, I warn you that self-respecting Populists will not follow you in this matter.

"I cannot forbear, sir, finally, to point out to you how you have warped the Populist party from its original purposes; how you have betrayed its principles and sold its opportunities for a song; how under your leadership what was once a mighty army, 40,000 strong, has dwindled to a fourth of that number of discouraged and disheartened followers to whom you are leaving no alternative save to give up their party or to become accomplices with you in the basest attempt against the peace, happiness, prosperity and civilization of the commonwealth that has ever been made in its history.

"Speaking for myself, my choice is made. I'll none of it.

"Very truly yours,
"J. J. MARSHALL."

CALL FOR THE DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION.

Didn't Like the Taste.

MARJORIE'S SAILOR LAD.

"Goodby, Marjorie, my darling; write often to your 'boy in blue,' and may heaven bless you for the promise you have given me!"

"Goodby, Herbert. I shall pray for your safety and speedy return. Take care of yourself, for (with drooping lids and an almost inaudible voice) you are my life."

Herbert Lord 'drew the beautiful girl to him in a closer embrace, and the last moments of their parting, though silent, were full of eloquence.

Marjorie had watched her handsome lover as he mounted the hill. When he reached the summit, he turned, and she stretched out both hands to him in mute entreaty for his return; then she summoned her courage and gayly kissed her hand to him. He raised his cap, returned her salute, and with head still bared, disappeared from view.

Marjorie leaned against the tree and covered her face with her hands. She felt a loneliness that she had never before experienced. All unconscious that their parting had been witnessed, the young girl sat musing until she was startled by hearing a voice almost in her ear:

"Why these tears, Miss Marjorie? Surely no one has less cause for unhappiness than the beautiful Miss Gardiner."

Marorie turned and saw before her Thomas Braeme. How she loathed him now! Yet, why? She knew him to be immensely wealthy; he was considered a great catch by mammas with marriageable daughters; he was lionized by society, and yet Marjorie involuntarily shrank from his smooth tongue and persisted attentions. She had once refused his offer of marriage, and this act on her part had been the cause of many bitter reproaches from her family.

When she heard his voice, she drew herself up, and, ignoring his outstretched hand, replied, "Pardon me, Mr. Braeme, I am not unhappy, and if I were I fail to see how it could possibly concern you."

His eyes flashed ominously, but he controlled his anger and replied:

"Anything that affects you concerns me, Marjorie. No; hear me. You know that I have loved you, that I still love you, and I now come for the second time with your parents' approval and good wishes for my success. Marjorie, marry me, and you shall have everything that makes life worth living. I will be a good husband to you."

Husband! At the thought of Thomas Braeme as a husband her face grew white and a shudder shook her frame. She answered coldly:

"Mr. Braeme, I can only answer you as I did before, and I ask you to accept this as final. Your persistency in this matter annoys me, and I beg of you to cease."

She turned to go, but he stopped her.

"There is some one else. You cannot deny it."

"Neither does that concern you," she haughtily replied.

In his anger he cried: "And do you imagine that I do not know your little game? You have met Herbert Lord against your parents' wishes, and many of your clandestine meetings have been witnessed. A common sailor! Where is your sense of honor that you stoop so low?"

Marjorie was thoroughly aroused by this attack, and her reply, though uttered in anger, carried conviction.

"I will tell you. My idea of honor lies in the fact that when a man responds to his country's call and is worthy to wear its glorious uniform, poor man though he be, he has reached a degree of honor which a rich stay at home can never attain. Listen! Herbert Lord is poor, you are rich, but one button on his coat is worth more to me than all your piles of boasted gold. I respect him and if he lives to return I shall marry him. Now, if you have one atom of the honor for which you are looking in others you will never mention this subject to me again."

Marjorie Gardiner turned and walked away.

Every argument was used to induce her to change her decision, but Marjorie remained true to her promise, and when she was married a year later it was a quiet affair, as befitted the bride's future station as the wife of Herbert Lord.

After a brief honeymoon they went to reside in Derwent, where Herbert owned a cottage. At the station they were met by a smartly liveried footman, who touched his hat respectfully as Herbert Lord and his bride alighted.

"Everything all right, Matthews?"

"All right, sir," with another touch, as he led the way to an elegant carriage drawn by handsome bays. As they rolled comfortably along, tired after their journey, Herbert Lord thought it time to prepare his bride for the surprise in store for her. So, drawing her to him, he remarked, "This is rather more comfortable, isn't it, dear?"

Marjorie looked at him with a look of unutterable content as she replied:

"Yes, Herbert, but I fear you have indulged in another bit of extravagance as a wind up to our month of luxurious living."

"No, my little wife, I can well afford to do what I have done. I have practiced a little deception which I hope you will not find it too hard to forgive. I am not the poor sailor you thought me, although I am proud of my connection with Uncle Sam's navy. I have won the truest little woman in the wide world for my wife, and it will be the one great pleasure of my life to give her the luxuries that she so bravely fought against sharing with Thomas Braeme. Here we are. Welcome home, my darling wife, and may you be as happy as you have made me."

They drew up before a colonial mansion of fine architectural design, and as they reached the steps the massive door was thrown open and the pleasant, though respectful expressions of greeting from the servants bespoke the love and esteem in which their master was held.

Father and Mother Gardiner spent several weeks of each year at the Lord mansion, and loud and long were the praises they sang of their son—Herbert. To Marjorie he was the same—her gallant, true hearted sailor lad.—Boston Post.

"Why," he asked, "do girls like so much to display diamond rings on their engagement fingers?"

"Well," she replied, as she carelessly twirled the jewel on her third finger, "you know there is nothing like a shining example to stimulate one when he has a purpose in mind."

When she had time to speak again she cried:

"Housework is hard work without Gold Dust"

Care of Lamps

Many housekeepers think there is nothing to learn about the care of lamps, but if the little details here mentioned are adhered to there will be a great difference in the light. First, a lamp must be cleaned and filled every morning; the burners should be cleaned once a week, and the best way is to boil them in water to which has been added. Put a teaspoonful into a quart of water and boil ten minutes. The flues should be put into a pan of cold water and heated slowly until they boil, then take off and allow to cool gradually; this toughens the glass.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

BURNING THE FLAG.

The story was told me years ago floating by Dead Man's slough one hot afternoon. The slough is a bayou of the upper Mississippi. Fishermen sometimes find corpses there attached to their lines.

"See," said Bristow, the story teller, pointing to a bay on the western shore of the river, "Sebastopol was there once—a bloody town that went out in the night. How do I know who laid it out or what became of those who were there? Perhaps the river swallowed it up, perhaps lightning blasted it out. I wasn't there. But right where the water's breaking on the bank now the town stood, and because the bluffs and the hills bound it in they called it Sebastopol, and the sugar and wheat boats came and went, the women and children kidded about the streets, and the men waited for the town to make 'em all millionaires. All towns in that Sioux and Winnebago country were gold mines in those days—days when everybody had a dream.

"A boat throws out her lines one night and ties up, and when the captain comes ashore and the best of the town was going down his gully he tells as how the south is for secession and going to quit the north. He says in the cotton fields men are working with guns by their sides, and that there was a new flag, one with stars and bars, what was put up over the other with stars and stripes. And it was all about the nigger. Sebastopol didn't care for niggers; there wasn't one in town, and those what come up on the boats staid on 'em when at Sebastopol. One what come ashore they put at the foot of a hill with the oak and the elm so thick that you couldn't see the top, and they started him on the climb up with the hounds after him. And it was music to the ears below when the hounds reached him and his yell of despair was shut off with the yelp of the dogs. Did he get away? Nobody went to see. He didn't come back, but the dogs did.

"Fifteen hundred miles away from Washington, Sebastopol learns of secession and decides it'll go out of the Union, too, and on a vote there was 71 men for destroying the town flag, which was a proper banner of stripes and stars. There was one man, a Vermonter, whose name was Jessup, who voted for the flag, and he got his notice that night to follow the nigger over the hills, only he didn't get the dogs after him. He takes his rifle and he goes to the top of the highest bluff what overlooks Sebastopol, so high up he could look right down into the town, and he sets there all night. I heard as how when morning came some people, maybe women, sees him kneeling as if he had prayers to say.

"Ten o'clock that morning the town folk all meet in the little square what was the landing place for the boats, and there's some wood piled up there, and over the top of the wood two men stretched the old flag. And then, to show they wasn't afraid, they brings out a little girl all dressed in white, and she has a little torch, and she puts that to the wood, and it lights up. Perhaps in 10 or 20 minutes the flag and the wood are all gone, and Sebastopol is satisfied that it's seceded. The men was so excited that they didn't work, and the women hung about the doorways and wondered what would come next. Somebody said as how the south was going to take everything along the river from New Orleans to St. Anthony, and as how Jeff Davis would be king. Some of the Sebastopol people knew him, because he'd been at Fort Prairie du Chien when he was in the regular army.

"While they were all speculating somebody looks up to the top of the hill where old Jessup had gone, and there they sees the stars and stripes waving from a pole and Jessup standing by it, leaning on his gun and looking down. Suppose he must have had it in his kit for a long time. It wasn't a big flag, but big enough for all Sebastopol to see it and get redhot mad. The men goes for their guns, the women get inside the houses, and there's going to be trouble sure. There was just one way to get up to Jessup, and that was a straight climb through the brush to where he was. A couple of men took a shot at him from the town, but he never moved, and the first fellow that got anywhere near him Jessup gave him warning and shot him dead. That stopped the others, and they went to speculating. They speculated all day and night and for several days, but Jessup and the flag didn't move until they got ready to.

"When they did go, nobody saw them, and the next word what comes to Sebastopol was that the regulars at Fort Snelling had been notified of what the town had done, and there was going to be trouble. Sebastopol laughed, but just like a woman who has the lung trouble, not bad, but coming slow and gradual, the town fades away. This family goes and that one, the docks break away, the flood comes, the houses tumble in, the timber wolves get nearer, there's a freshet, Lake Pepin backs up, and one morning there ain't anything where Sebastopol was but sand, wood grass and some birds and squirrels. Of course God does some queer things, and I don't never meddle with his business. It's enough for me to know that he's around sawing wood, but I just have kept a-thinking ever since I knew about that flag that somehow what Sebastopol did didn't agree with the Almighty, and he put out his hand and laid it upon the town, and that was enough."

The boat swung outward to avoid a sand bar, and we passed from sight of the town upon which the withering blight of an unknown power had fallen after the destruction of the flag.—New York Evening Post.

A Compositor's Blunder.

"In our last number, as we discovered unfortunately too late for correction, we announced that Mr. John Stuart Mill's inaugural address lately delivered before the University of St. Andrew's had since been republished by him 'in the form of a 5 shilling elephant.' Even the most ardent believers in Mr. Mill's powers among our readers will probably have received this announcement with some incredulity. The fact is that by an error of the press the word 'elephant' was substituted for 'pamphlet;' and the mistake—although the proof was read and reread—unluckily escaped the corrector's eye."

Ostracised.

"What's the reason nobody seems to associate with him?"

"He's the only dog in the world that isn't named Dewey."—New York Journal.

The Poet's Error.

Among his books, by love beguiled,
He wooed a girl, who smiled and smiled.
Fond verse he read and seemed to feel
She echoed his poetic zeal.

Nay, poet, nay; that girl so young
Has mind and heart by pain unwrung;
The girl who all your dreams could share
Wears spectacles and has gray hair.

YOUR HEALTH.

That most precious of all gifts—have you lost it?—do you wish to regain it?

Will you give Nature a chance to make you well?

Is there not a peculiar satisfaction in the thought of a natural cure, and does not a cure brought about by natural means carry with it a sense of absolute security?

Oftentimes the water-mains become foul from gradually deposited impurities. In such cases the water is turned on full force. How dirty the water that at first issues from the hydrant! but, gradually clearing, it becomes pure and clean. This is but the flushing of the pipes with an abundant supply of water, thus forcing out all impurities.

There are times when the system is all clogged up with impurities. At such times, instead of dosing with medicines for the purification of the blood, flush the system with Barium Rock Spring Water, Nature's Blood Purifier.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

HON. W. J. BRYAN'S VISIT TO RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

RICHMOND, VA., February 12.—Hon. W. J. Bryan reached here at 8.40 o'clock this morning from Washington, escorted by a joint committee of the Virginia Legislature, he having been invited to address that body. The trip was made in the private car of President Williams, of the Seaboard Air Line system. Notwithstanding a steady rain, there was a crowd at the depot which insisted upon shaking hands. Mr. Bryan was driven to the Jefferson, where he partook of breakfast with members of the committee, State Democratic Chairman Ellyson and others.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon Mr. Bryan addressed an audience at the Academy of Music, made up of the members of the Legislature and as many other persons as could possibly get into the building. Admission to the greater part of the house was by ticket and the demand for tickets was much greater than the supply. The part of the building that was thrown open to the public was quickly filled, and many people were unable to obtain admission.

On the stage were many distinguished Democrats, including Governor Tyler, Hon. J. Taylor Ellyson, chairman of the State Democratic Committee, Attorney General Montague and others. There were many ladies in the audience.

The meeting was called to order by State Senator Barksdale, chairman of the joint Legislative Committee, on invitation of Mr. Bryan, and the speaker of the afternoon was introduced by Hon. E. W. Sanders, Speaker of the House of Delegates.

Mr. Bryan began with an eloquent tribute to Virginia, as having been a leader in all the great movements that have taken place in this country, and took occasion to eulogize Robert E. Lee, and to compliment General Fitzhugh Lee, the latter for his good management of affairs at Havana just before the outbreak of the war with Spain. He then defined the duties of the legislator, in view of the character of his audience, as those of a servant and not the master of the people he represents, and discussed the income tax, the currency and trust questions, and the Philippine problem; his arguments on all of them being those familiar to the reading public.

He aroused much enthusiasm at various times. Particularly was his audience demonstrative in applause when he expressed the hope that the British would never get to Ladysmith and when he pointed out the dangers of the unchecked growth of the trust evil. His denunciation of the administration with respect to the Filipinos was also greatly applauded.

At 6 o'clock this evening Mr. Bryan and the legislative committee were entertained at dinner by Hon. J. Taylor Ellyson, and this was followed by a reception at Mr. Ellyson's residence in honor of Mr. Bryan. From 8 to 10 o'clock, at the Jefferson hotel, Mr. Bryan held a more general public reception, which was very largely attended.

In an interview here to-day, Mr. Bryan said he thought the Democratic party was in better fighting trim than he had seen it in years. He said the battle of 1900 would be fought out on three issues—money, imperialism and trusts—but he could not say which one would be brought more prominently to the front. He had found the situation in the North and East much improved. Many gold Democrats were coming back to the party and a number of Republicans would refuse to support the old party on account of its position on expansion.

Mr. Bryan will leave here at 9 o'clock to-morrow morning for Raleigh, N. C., where he speaks to-morrow night.

Mr. Bryan announced the following other engagements: Chapel Hill, Wednesday, February 14th; Columbia, S. C., February 15th; Tampa, Fla., February 20th; Jackson, Miss., February 21st; Columbus, Ga., February 22nd; Atlanta, Ga., February 23rd; Nashville, Tenn., February 24th, and Memphis, Tenn, February 25th.

TROUBLE IN MARTINIQUE.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

FORT DE FRANCE, ISLAND OF MARTINIQUE, February 12, via Haytien cable.—The white inhabitants of Le France, being threatened with death by rioting strikers, have sought refuge here, the Governor having declared it impossible to guarantee their lives.

The managers of the plantations are requesting permission to organize forces of military for the purpose of protecting the persons who are at work, but the Governor will not accept the responsibility of authorizing such a step.

A band of rioters last evening marched through Fort de France without molestation, shouting: "Long live the negro race!" "Down with the whites!" "Down with the murderers!" "Vengeance!"

SENATE DEBATED FINANCIAL BILL.

Senator Wolcott Spoke for Republicans Who Adhere to Bimetallism.

OTHER MATTERS CONSIDERED

Butler Spoke on Bill Providing for Issue of Paper Currency by the Government—Bill to Permit Transit of Goods in Bond Passed.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—the final week's discussion of the pending Financial bill was begun in the Senate to-day. The speakers were two Republicans, Senators Elkins, West Virginia, and Wolcott, Colorado, and one Populist, Senator Butler, North Carolina. Senator Elkins advocated the passage of the pending Senate measure in a brief but forceful argument. Senator Wolcott, chairman of the international bimetallic commission of 1897, spoke for many Republicans who adhere to bimetallism, and his speech, earnest and eloquent, was accorded unusual attention. Senator Butler advocated the adoption of an amendment providing for an issue of paper currency by the government.

A House bill for the preservation of the frigate Constitution was passed, the measure providing that the ship should be restored as nearly as possible to its original condition.

A bill was also passed extending the powers and functions of the court of private land claims until June 30th, 1902.

The Financial bill was then called up and Senator Elkins addressed the Senate. He said Senator Chandler's speech of Saturday would be distributed by hundreds of thousands by Senator Chandler's political enemies.

Senator Elkins commended the general provisions of the bill but criticised the sixth section, providing for the funding of the public debt. "We should not" he said, "reach conclusions and legislate from the standpoint of vision of the highest wave of prosperity the country has ever had. The conditions which surround us in the financial and commercial world are extraordinary. Present favorable conditions will be followed naturally by a reaction that will bring new experiences."

The Senator suggested that the government might find it difficult at some time in the future to keep the proposed two per cent. bonds at par, and asked, would it not be better and in the public interest to make the rate of interest higher, say to 3 per cent., and offer no inducements to the national banks."

In closing, he said that even under more favorable conditions than are promised in the pending bill, the circulation of national banks may disappear, partly because it is not profitable now to the banks and may not be under the provisions of this bill, and partly because of the prejudice and opposition on the part of a large portion of the people to national banks issuing currency; but largely, and more than all this, for the reason there will be no need of bank note circulation in case the increase of certificates against gold deposits in the treasury should continue. To my mind, gold certificates and silver certificates, under proper limitations are the money of the future, and the money of the very near future. This would leave with the government the sole power of issuing money; therefore I conclude that it is not needful to offer inducements to national banks to take two per cent. bonds nor to fund the public debt before our bonds mature by giving a bonus to national banks and putting out a bond that cannot be redeemed under thirty years."

Calendar Bills Passed.

The following bills on the general calendar were passed: To construct a road to the national cemetery at Dover, Tenn., at a cost of $11,500; to carry into effect two resolutions of the Continental Congress directing monuments to be erected to the memory of Gen. Francis Nash and Wm. L. Davidson of North Carolina, appropriating $5,000 for each; to encourage enlistment in the navy by providing successful applicants with an outfit valued at $45; to authorize Hon. A. S. Handy, at present minister of the United States to Greece, Roumania and Servia, to accept the decoration tendered him by the Pasha of Persia; to authorize the following naval officers to accept orders and decorations tendered to them by the government of Venezuela: Rear Admiral W. T. Sampson, Captain H. C. Taylor, Captain F. W. Cook, Captain C. D. Sigsbee, Captain F. E. Chadwick, Captain C. F. Goodrich, Commander W. W. Mead, Commander J. H. Dayton, Commander F. M. Simonds and Commander C. C. Todd.

Walcott on Bimetallism.

Senator, Wolcott, whose position as chairman of the International Bimetallic Committee made his utterance of more than usual importance, then spoke. Referring to the first section of the Senate bill declaring the gold dollar should continue to stand as the standard unit of value, Senator Wolcott said:

"Of course it will—and it will so continue if this section were eliminated from the bill. This section has been the law since 1873 and is hardly worth discussing now.

"The provision requiring the payment of the principal and interest of the new bonds in gold, represents, I think, a mistaken view as to our national credit. I cannot but express my regret that the committee felt that the exigencies of the money market required a departure from the terms heretofore used in government obligations."

Adverting to national banks and to the provisions of the bill which affords them opportunity to increase their circulation to the par value of all government bonds deposited, Senator Wolcott said:

"Succeeding years have only more firmly implanted them as an integral part of our financial system, not to be uprooted without a more radical change of policy than any party or administration should care to attempt. "It is estimated that within the next few months at least two hundred millions of additional national bank circulation will follow the passage of the bill.

"The enactment of this measure into law without at the same time accompanying it with a re-affirmance of the position of the Republican party respecting international bimetallism would be an apparent abandonment of its principles and policy, and the amendment reported by the Financial Committee conveys positive assurance to the world that this country while able to hold its own among the nations of the earth with gold as its standard, is still ready to meet and treat with the other leading commercial countries looking to an international agreement to open the mints of the world to silver as well as gold."

He attacked the Chicago platform, which he described as a heterogeneous patchwork of negations and populistic notions. Mr. Bryan, if he were President, and a majority of Congress favored his views, would never dare, Mr. Wolcott charged, to seek the imposition upon this country of the responsibility of entering unaided on the duty of maintaining a parity at the old rate.

He attacked Mr. Bryan's Louisville speech, and concluded: "It is my sincere conviction that in our day, and I believe soon, a genuine and united effort will be sought by the leading commercial nations to restore the bimetallic system."

Senator Butler then spoke on a substitute for the Senate bill, entitled "An act to establish a unit of account."

Mr. Butler said his amendment provided that the greenback—the patriotic friend of the people—the kind of money that did not desert the people when trouble came, should be used as money instead of gold or silver. In five years, he said, the national debt could be extinguished. This plan was not received with favor by those who control the finances of the government, but he believed it would be best for the people.

The Senate went into executive session and at 5.10 P. M. adjourned.

House of Representatives.

After disposing of half a dozen District bills, Mr. Payne, New York, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, called up the bill to permit transit through the United States of goods in bond without the payment of duties. The bill has a proviso suspending its operation as far as goods bound for the Mexican free zone are concerned.

Mr. Payne explained that the bill was designed to broaden the scope of the present law so as to permit the trans-shipment of goods across the United States, no matter what their destination might be. It was especially desirable in view of the growing trade with the Orient. Under it goods could be shipped across the United States to China or Japan. The free zone provision was designed to prevent smuggling. Mr. Payne said that he would yield to Mr. Grosvenor, Ohio, to offer an amendment to the provision. It was offered, and proposed to substitute for it an amendment to repeal the joint resolution of March 1st, 1895, to prohibit the entry of goods into the free zone of Mexico.

The amendment was adopted—56 to 12—and the bill passed.

At 3.15 P. M. the House adjourned.

FLANKING GENERAL BULLER.

Boers Assume Offensive—Threaten British Line of Communication by Movement on Flank and Rear.

Special to Baltimore Sun.

LONDON, February 11.—The fact that the London War Office up to the present has not made public any message from General Buller in regard to his retirement across the Tugela, now fully confirmed, has aroused a feeling of apprehension that the General is too busily engaged in meeting a Boer flank movement to send dispatches.

The Boers have assumed, temporarily at least, the offensive upon the British right flank and line of communication. Plainly this is their best means of compelling the abandonment of the effort to relieve Ladysmith by the Springfield and Schiet drift route.

At Inhlawe mountain, east of Colenso, the Boers long had a threatening position upon the British right. They seem now to have pushed forward from it to a point described as Bloy's farm, "not an hour's ride from Cheveley." This place probably is a little southwest of Inhlawe, since it is said to command both the wagon road and railway bridge at Colenso.

At the same time news comes from Natal of a further development of the Boer flank movement in the direction of Greytown. This would threaten the British line of communication far to the south.

It is likely that General Buller will have to leave General White to hold out as best he can while Buller protects his own position.

From the Cape press is taken the news, which has been carefully suppressed by the censors in telegrams, that Ladysmith took to horseflesh in January. Plainly it is nearing the end of its resistance.

Clubdom was much exercised Saturday night by a persistent rumor that Ladysmith had fallen, with the result that large numbers of members were at their clubs early to day. There was no confirmation of the rumor.

Another report is that General Joubert, with 6,000 Boers, has already started to swing around the British flank.

The present week promises to be one of great anxiety for England. So far the Boers have been able to hold the British at every point. How they will fare upon taking the offensive remains to be seen.

Unbounded faith generally in Roberts and Kitchener is held here. What is more, Buller is not blamed, but praised. What is heard over and over again is that Buller must keep banging away at the Boers, keep them working at mounting guns and trench-digging, inflicting as much loss upon them as possible, but saving his men to the utmost. This is not the kind of talk heard three months ago, but it is what is heard now. It is sober opinion, formed after repeated reverses.

PHILIPPINE ADVICES.

Islands Not Included in the Paris Treaty Seized by U. S. Authorities.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

MANILA, February 12.—It is reported that the United States gunboat Princeton visited the Tatanes and Calagan Islands which were omitted from the Paris treaty of peace, being north of twenty degrees of latitude raised American flags and appointed native governors. It is added that the Princeton found the Japanese flag at the Bayat island and refrained from landing there, pending orders.

Reports from native sources, which are not confirmed, say General Pio del Piler, the insurgent commander, died of fever recently. The Princeton occupied the northern islands under a government order.

The report that the Japanese flag was found flying is not confirmed, but there are rumors that Japan intended to take the islands. The natives willingly substituted the Americans for the insurgent officials and took the oath of allegiance.

The natives of Samar and Leyte are returning to their towns and normal conditions are being resumed.

A notification has been sent by the Tsung Li Yamen to the foreign legations that the Emperor of China will hold the customary new year audience February 19th. This is regarded as an important indication of the desire of the Dowager Empress and the authorities to re-assure the foreign representatives.

GENERAL ROBERTS TAKES THE FIELD.

Will Enter the Free State With an Army of 30,000 Men for Relief of Kimberley.

WILL FLANK BOER FORCES.

The Situation in Natal Unchanged—Boers Threaten Buller's Communications. Military Movements in England—More Troops.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

LONDON, February 13, 4.15 A. M.—Lord Roberts has gathered thirty-five thousand men, with whom, according to the best military opinion in London, he purposes turning the left of the Magersfontein line near Jacobsdal, entering the Free State, compelling General Cronje to raise the siege of Kimberley, and thus making his first step toward Bloemfontein.

Lord Roberts tells the correspondents that when he gets down to business they shall have ample opportunities to send news. His chief press censor yesterday issued new rules, and in future all written communications are to go unchecked. Only telegrams will be censored. For the next few days little news is likely to get through, but later there will be more freedom. Thus says the censor, and the last clause may be interpreted to mean that Something is About to Happen.

Kimberley, twenty miles away from the Modder river position, is in sore straits. Details of the December death rate show that in a population of 14,000 whites and 19,000 blacks the mortality was 60 whites and 138 blacks per thousand. The infantile death rate was 671 per thousand among the whites and 912 per thousand among the blacks. Enteric fever was prevalent.

Meanwhile the bombardment by the Boers has increased, and there is imminent danger of the town falling under the very eyes of Lord Roberts. It is believed in circles close to the War Office that he will move at once.

Scouts have approached within a thousand yards of the Boer entrenchments at Magersfontein. They have found these strong, and ascertained that they are used as dwelling places. Naval gunners are constantly watching the enemy's lines with strong glasses, and they declare that there is an appreciable diminution in the Boer forces.

In Natal the Boer commandoes south of the Tugela occupy Bold's farm and several miles west of Chieveley. Two thousand Boers, with three guns, are advancing through Zululand toward Natal.

More Troops From England.

The War Office is making preparations to continue the stream of troops for South Africa. Four large steamers have been chartered.

Japan agrees to let the Armstrongs transfer to England four naval quick firers that were built for her, consenting to wait for the execution of her own order until the hostilities in South Africa are over. Several European powers by a similar consent as to guns being constructed by Vickers Sons and Maxim, enable England to secure one hundred Maxims.

Two thousand men are constantly employed at Woolwich arsenal, and all the gun and ammunition factories are working night and day to execute Government orders. The weekly output of four firms is 4,000,000 rounds.

Roberts in Command at Modder River.

LONDON, February 12.—In the House of Lords to-day replying to a question as to whether Major General Sir Frederick Carrington was destined for a command in South Africa and whether General Methuen was still in command at the Modder river, Lord Lansdown, the Secretary of State for War, answered that portion of the query referring to General Carrington in the affirmative and added: "General Roberts is now at the Modder river and in command of the whole forces there."

The War Office has received the following dispatch from Field Marshal Lord Roberts, dated from the Modder river, Sunday, February 11th:

"I have received a telegram from General Buller as follows, dated Friday, February 9th. 'It was necessary after seizing Vaal Krantz to entrench it as the pivot of further operations, but I found after trying two days that, owing to the nature of the ground, that this was impracticable. It was also exposed to the fire of heavy guns in positions from which our artillery was dominated. It is essential to the troops advancing on Ladysmith by Harding or Mongers drift to hold Vaal Krantz securely, and accordingly we are not pressing the advance by those roads, as I find we cannot make it secure.'"

Important Military Movements.

LONDON, February 12.—Great Britain remains waiting anxiously to learn which side will succeed in striking first. The widespread belief that the hands of Field Marshal Lord Roberts and General Kitchener are now firmly gripped at the helm contributes to a feeling of more confidence that, whatever happens, the campaign will now be waged under a careful, conservative plan, in which all the forces will co operate. Both sides seem to be collecting themselves for attack. The left horn of the Boer army is creeping through Zululand and threatening the British right, and at Chieveley General Joubert, with 6,000 men, is reported to be endeavoring to attack General Buller. Boer aggressiveness has already developed and has met with a repulse at Rensburg, while from what now becomes the most important point of campaign, the Modder river, comes the news of ceaseless activity and redoubled vigilance. These reports create hopefulness in Great Britain rather than anxiety, for the impression exists that the Boer aggressiveness will give the British troops their long yearned for opportunity and tend greatly to assist the broad plan of campaign which Lord Roberts may shortly be expected to set in motion at the Modder river. Meanwhile, Ladysmith must await the exigencies attendant upon the more important military movements now on foot. It is said positively that General MacDonald's withdrawal from Koodoosberg was ordered by General Metheun, under Lord Roberts' instructions.

A GHASTLY DISCOVERY.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

PETERSBURG, Va., February 12.—Yesterday morning the ghastly discovery was made that some time during the previous night the little home of Maria Smith, colored, near Stoney Creek, on the Atlantic Coast Line, had been destroyed by fire and the woman and her six children burned up. The origin of the fire is a mystery, the improbable theory being that the woman was giving a sick child medicine, and overturned a kerosene lamp.

LINCOLN DAY BANQUET.

Address of Gov. D. L. Russell on "The Progress of Republicanism in the South" Read by Loge Harriss.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

CHICAGO, February 12.—The fifteenth annual Lincoln day banquet of the Marquette Club was given to night at the Auditorium hotel, covers being laid for five hundred guests.

The address of Governor D. L. Russell, of North Carolina on "the Progress of Republicanism in the South" was read by Adjutant General J. C. L. Harris, of North Carolina. Gov. Russell having been prevented by official duties from leaving his State.

Governor Russell said the opposition to negro suffrage among the whites in the slave belt in the South is almost as strong and universal as was the devotion to the institution of slavery. The mere presence of the negro, coupled with the fact that the Federal constitution guarantees on paper his right to vote equally with any other citizen having the same qualifications, has been sufficient to keep the whites solidly in one organization, which they call the Democratic party. Thousands of them are in their real sentiments against the Democratic party, and these thousands, the property holders and business men, are mostly at war with the platform of the Democratic party and in sympathy with every tenet of the Republican party. If they resided in the free States (States that were not slaveholding) they would be outspoken Republicans. They have abandoned secession, chattel slavery and State rights on every question but the negro question; but as to this they have defied the national government by flagrant, persistent and successful nullification of its constitution and its laws. And to this nullification the North has submitted to an extent that looks like condonation, if not approval. If your war amendments cannot be enforced, would it not be better to repeal them? Yet these men will go into the Democratic primaries and vote this year for Bryan and pray for McKinley—not only pray for his policy, but also pray for his re election."
